Temporary and Promotional Permits

Promotional Permit

The holder of a promotional permit may, on behalf of a brewer, distiller, rectifier, manufacturer, winery, or wine bottler with whom the permit holder has entered into a contract with, engage in activities to promote and enhance the sale of an alcoholic beverage in this state, including activities that take place on the premises of the holder of a permit or license. This means that a permit holder is allowed to do in store demonstrations and promotions, like offering wine and beer samples.

Temporary and Promotional Permits

The holder of a promotional permit can still face criminal charges for providing alcohol to a minor or serving an intoxicated person. Because these are criminal violations it is important for a promotional permit holder or their agent or employee to:

- √ Verify the person is 21 years of age or older before serving;
- ✓ Look for and identify signs of intoxication;
- ✓ Know who to go to when they need help with a customer, and
- ✓ Know how to professionally and safely refuse service.

Remember: Even though you are only offering sample beverages, it is a criminal offense to provide alcohol to a minor or serve an intoxicated person.

Temporary Permits (Fairs, Festivals, Special Events, etc.)

Many organizations will apply for temporary permits that allow the sale and service of beer, wine and mixed beverages at locations in which beverages are not usually sold for on-premise consumption.

It is important for a seller or server to know that regular alcoholic beverage laws apply even though they are working/volunteering at a special event. When working/volunteering for a special event, remember how to:

- √ Check ID's;
- ✓ Recognize signs of intoxication;
- ✓ Safely and professionally refuse a sale; and
- ✓ Ask for help from management or law enforcement.

Remember: Even though you are a volunteer and aren't being paid for your time, you can still be held civilly and criminally liable for serving and intoxicated person and criminally liable for providing alcohol to a minor.

Free Drinks

Some organizations choose to provide "free" alcoholic beverages as part of a promotion or event. In this instance, no license or permit is needed. However, in order for this to be the case, the beverages must be offered to any adult that walks in the door and requests a beverage. If the beverages are for paying customers only, it is assumed that the price of the alcohol is included in the price of the service. In that instance a license or permit is required.

Public Entertainment Facilities

A Public Entertainment Facility (PEF), as a stadium, arena, or other permanent structure that is used for sporting events.

Effective 6/10/2015, TABC approved PEF's in which all licenses and permits are held by a single holder, may allow a patron who possesses an alcoholic beverage to enter or leave a licensed or permitted premises within the facility if the alcoholic beverage:

- In an open container;
- Appears to be possessed to currently consume;
- Remains within the facility, excluding the parking lot; and
- Was purchased legally at a licensed or permitted premises at the facility.

Public Entertainment Facilities

Examples

Many people may be working in PEF's such as the Ranger's Ball Park, Cowboy's Stadium or other sports venues. With the increase in alcohol being served at sporting events, more sellers and servers will find themselves working in this type of facility. The seller/server will no longer have to make sure that patrons are leaving the designated premises within the PEF with open alcoholic beverages. Alcoholic Beverages are not allowed to leave the interior of the PEF.
